General Search

① Determine the tribe affiliation if not already known.

② If applicable check census for 1900, 1910, 1920, 1930

If the person is living with a Native American group the census will show a special form having 15 lines numbered from 1 to 15, at the top of the page recording the usual federal census information. If the person is found in this section on line #1, drop to the lower half of the page, to line 1. There you will find the person's Indian name, his tribe, his quantum of Indian blood, his father's tribe and quantum and his mother's tribe and quantum of Indian blood.

This information is acceptable to the US Government for establishing Native American blood, for their purposes and also for employment purposes. It is not acceptable evidence to the tribes for citizenship

③ Check the Family History Library Catalog (FHL) for the records that have been filmed for that particular tribe.

Looking especially for:

Annuity Rolls

Sanitary Rolls

Census Records (tribal census, these will not be similar to Federal census, they were taken by the agent to the tribe and he asked whatever questions he wanted.)

Court of Claims Records

Family Registers

Books of the tribe

④ Contact the tribe.

<http://www.doi.gov/leaders.pdf>

⑤ Contact the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

<http://www.doi.gov/bureau-indian-affairs.html>

The phone number will be listed under United States Government Offices in the Yellow Pages.
The Office of the Area Director is: 602.379.6600

6 For western areas and tribes check for the Catholic Church Records.

1. www.ProGenealogist.com

United States Genealogy Sleuth > scroll down to "Native Americans and click on Access Genealogy Native Links Click and then click on How to Search under Research Tips, Sources and Books

2. Check the FHLC under CHURCH RECORDS for the appropriate location

7 Check the FHLC

Under the State and Native Races listing for the records of any tribe you may be searching. Look for information on the tribe in "Our Native Americans" by Kay Kirkham 970.3 K635o Vol. 1,2,3

8 Check "The Source"

Read the chapter on Native American Research for additional suggestions. Reference Table 973 D27ts 1984

The "Five Civilized Tribes"

The Five Civilized Tribes was a loose confederation, formed in 1859, of North American Indians in what was then INDIAN TERRITORY (in present-day Oklahoma). The group comprised the Iroquoian-speaking CHEROKEE and the Muskogean-speaking CHICKASAW, CHOCTAW, CREEK, and SEMINOLE.

The Guion Miller Rolls pertain to the Eastern Band of Cherokee. These are packages of information relating to the Eastern Cherokee enrollment records 1908 to 1910. They are found in the Family History Library Catalog (FHLIC) under:
